Civic Engagement: Achieving Political Sustainability for Controversial Real Estate Projects

Meet nationally recognized NIMBY expert and corporate consultant Patrick Slevin, founder of the Slevin Group and profiled by Campaigns & Elections Magazine as one of the country's top political "Movers & Shakers."

Patrick Slevin was elected the youngest mayor in the history of Safety Harbor, Florida, at the age of 27. He has successfully secured social and political support for controversial projects at city hall and the ballot box on behalf of retailers, hoteliers, shopping centers, REITs, builders, master planners, insurance and waste management.

- What causes community opposition?
- Why Land Use Professionals need to embrace Civic Practices.
- How Civic Engagement Neutralizes "BANANA."

On September 9, Patrick Slevin will address what causes community opposition, why land use professionals need to embrace civic practices, and how civic engagement neutralizes BANANA (Build-Absolutely-Nothing-Anywhere-Near-Anyone) initiatives to include Florida Hometown Democracy.

Join us for what promises to be a lively discussion on widely known, but misunderstood phenomenon affecting millions of Americas every year.
